

Understanding Dyslexia

Helping Parents, Kids and Educators understand why it is so hard for some children to learn to read, write and spell

Dyslexia is an often misunderstood term that relates to an individual's struggle with or inability to learn to read. The goal of this discussion is to demystify the term dyslexia and its related challenges in writing and spelling (math). Understanding and using common language can help families, educators and administrators grasp what it takes for these students to succeed. Further, let's talk about Response to Intervention and how it can impact the education of students with dyslexia.

Join Elenn Steinberg, President the International Dyslexia Association - Rocky Mountain Branch and Lynn Doughman board member of IDA, for an informative discussion and opportunity to ask questions. Elenn has been involved in House Bill 1223 since its inception and is currently working with the Colorado Department of Education to produce materials that will support a deeper understanding of dyslexia and literacy challenges in our state.
